Global Electric Motorcars brings electric cars to police fleet decision makers

Louisville, Ky. -- Police departments from California to New Jersey are embracing Global Electric Motorcars (GEM) neighborhood electric vehicles for their ability to protect public safety and air quality at the same time. This week, GEM will further demonstrate how emission-free GEM vehicles can meet the needs of police fleets nationwide at the Police Fleet Expo at the Kentucky International Convention Center Louisville, Ky., August 22-25. GEM representatives will be showcasing vehicles with Chrysler in booth 515.

A Chrysler company, Global Electric Motorcars (GEM), has nearly 35,000 vehicles on the road nationwide being used by university campuses, master planned communities and for a wide array of purposes by local, state and national government agencies, among others.

About Global Electric Motorcars

Global Electric Motorcars is a 10-year old manufacturer of neighborhood electric vehicles (NEVs) that are street-legal and have many of the same safety features of regular cars (such as three-point seat belts, automotive safety glass, and lights) - but are much more economical in price and fuel consumption. Global Electric Motorcars was the first to offer a multipurpose NEV for sale from a major automaker. Today, the company produces six fully electric vehicle models ranging from two-seaters, to six-seaters, to utility models.

GEM vehicles have driven a combined 150 million miles and spared more than 100 tons of pollutants from reaching the air, while saving 7.5 million gallons of gasoline. GEM vehicles are eligible for incentives and tax credits from clean-air districts and other governmental agencies.
